(3) THE INDUSTRIAL DISPUTES (MADRAS AMENDMENT) BILL, 1963 (L.A. BILL NO. 7 OF 1963).

THE HON. SRI M. BHAKTAVATSALAM : Sir, I move—

' That the Industrial Disputes (Madras Amendment) Bill, 1963 (L.A. Bill No. 7 of 1963), be taken into consideration.

Under section 2 (n) (vi) of the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, (Central Act [IV of 1947), the appropriate Government can declare only those industries specified in the First Schedule to the Act as public utility services. The leather and the oxygen and acetylene industries have not been included in that Schedule. The Government have received representations requesting that the leather industry may be declared as public utility service under the said Act. The process of leather tanning consists of various stages stretched over a period of thirty days and if the processes at one stage were to be interrupted even for a few hours the skins and hides would get demaged, and consequently the threat of strikes with little or no notice to the managements should be eleminated. It has also been represented that the oxygen and acetylene industry is vital for the defence and economy of the country and that any sudden interruption in the production and distribution of their products will seriously dislocate important industries and institutions. It is, therefore, considered that the First Schedule to the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947, should be amended to include the leather and the oxygen and acetylene industries so as to enable the Government to declare the said industries as public utility services. Legislation is therefore necessary to give effect to the decision. The concurrence of the Government of India to the said Bill has also been obtained.
